

My site will be called “VAULTED by JD” and will be the base for my sports/trading card business. Over the past year, I started my own business off of a hobby of mine, collecting sports cards. At first, I started with a very small collection and sold less than 5 orders per month. Currently, I have a TikTok page showcasing recent pickups or me opening brand new sealed products. Other than that, I currently use Ebay and live-stream on WhatNot to sell any of my current inventory. With that all said, I have amassed over 2,000 followers and maintained a 5 star seller rating with 250+ total reviews across all 3 platforms. I believe this would be a great opportunity to further gain more attention towards my business, while also showcasing my love for the hobby. The main pages would be; the home page that showcases products and other items to catch attention, a main page for the single cards that is split by category, a page for NFL singles, a page for NBA singles, a page for MLB singles, a page for miscellaneous singles, a page showcasing pieces from my personal collection, an about page, a contact/information page with the potential to showcase a stream schedule, and a sell your cards page.